Punjab CM expresses solidarity with farmers, slams Haryana for attacking farmers through drone

CHANDIGARH: While expressing solidarity with the farmers of the state, the Punjab Chief Minister Bhagwant Singh Mann on Thursday said that the state government is firmly standing with the food growers of the country in this hour of crisis.

Taking part in meeting with the farmers and the Union Ministers including Arjun Munda, Piyush Goyal and Nityanand Rai, the Chief Minister said that the incidents in the past few days were unfortunate and could have been avoided. He said that the use of drones to attack the agitating farmers is intolerable and the state government has already opposed it. Bhagwant Singh Mann said that after his direction the Deputy Commissioner of Patiala had vehemently raised this issue before the Deputy Commissioner of Ambala.

The Chief Minister said that the Internet services in three districts of the state have been suspended, which is adversely affecting the studies of the students. He said that these days exams are going on and online study is being done but the suspension of internet services is highly condemnable. Bhagwant Singh Mann said that he does not want any of the youth of the stand to stand before water cannon or tear gas shells.

The Chief Minister said that the state government fully supports the demands being raised by the farmers of Punjab. He reiterated that barbed fences have been put on the borders of state with Haryana to segregate Punjab from India which is not fair. Bhagwant Singh Mann said that this type of step motherly treatment with the farmers of the state is unwarranted and undesirable.

The Chief Minister said that opposition labels them as 'B' team of the BJP but as a fact of matter AAP is the 'A' team of farmers. On the allegations of Haryana that Punjab is sponsoring farmers agitation, he said that should curfew be imposed in state for stopping peaceful protest of the farmers. Bhagwant Singh Mann said that they are not in politics for the sake of chairs and are not afraid of the threat regarding imposition of President's rule in the state.

The Chief Minister said that they are the advocates of the farmers and is participating in the meeting just because the food growers had desired so. Bhagwant Singh Mann said that he is personally keeping a tab over the entire situation adding that all the hospitals in the state have been put on high alert. He said that till yet 54 farmers have been seriously injured and the state government will provide them with free treatment.

The Chief Minister apprised the Union Ministers that the hard working and resilient farmers of the state had made the country self-reliant in food production. He said that for this farmers had even exploited the only available natural resources of the state in terms of fertile soil and water. Bhagwant Singh Mann said that due to this the water table has reached in dark zone in majority of blocks across the state.

We will give legal guarantees on MSP if Congress forms Govt : Rahul

NEW DELHI: Congress leader Rahul Gandhi on Friday promised to give legal guarantees on Minimum Support Price (MSP) to farmers if his party comes back to power at the Centre after the Lok Sabha elections.

"Whenever farmers have demanded anything from the Congress government, we have fulfilled it, be it waiver of loans or MSP. We have always protected the interests of farmers. We will do it again if given a chance,"

Rahul Gandhi said. He said that land snatching from farmers is currently underway in the country and the government has not given adequate compensation to them.

"During our government, we brought Land Acquisition Act and as per the guidelines of this act, the farmers were getting four times higher price from the market value for their lands," he said.

He said that there was also a provision in the act that land could not be acquired without the permission of farmers.

He said that if the land acquired by the company was not used for five years, the state government returned the land to the farmers but BJP nullified the act," Rahul Gandhi said.

"I want to promise to the farmers that if our government comes back to power, we will reinforce the Land Acquisition Act," he said.

Farmers protest: Shops, commercial establishments closed in Punjab, Haryana associations were seen asking traders at several places in the AAP-ruled Punjab to keep their shops and business establishments closed to mark the protest.

occupy toll plazas during the shutdown.

How Dilli Chalo is different from 2020 farmers' protest?

CHHAVI BHATIA
New Delhi

Farmers from Punjab, Haryana, and Uttar Pradesh are gearing up for a major protest, set to march to Delhi on Tuesday following inconclusive talks with Union ministers. Despite Minister Arjun Munda stating that consensus was reached on most issues and proposing a committee to address the rest, farmer leaders remain unsatisfied, citing a lack of clarity on legal guarantees for minimum support prices (MSP).

Scheduled to commence at 10 am, the 'Delhi Chalo' march faces obstacles, with the Haryana government erecting significant barriers along the state borders to prevent entry from Punjab. In anticipation of a repeat of the 2020-21 protests, Delhi's borders have also been fortified.

Here are five key differences between the ongoing farmers' protest, dubbed "2.0," and the 2020 demonstrations:

Reason for Protest: Unlike the 2020 protests against the now-repealed farm laws, the current agitation, initiated in 2023, demands a legal guarantee for MSP across all crops, implementation of the Swaminathan Commission's formula, full debt waiver, pension for farmers and laborers, and withdrawal of cases stemming from the previous protests.

Leadership: The landscape of farmers' unions has evolved since 2020, with the Samyukt Kisan Morcha (Non-Political) and the Kisan Mazdoor Morcha leading the charge for 'Delhi Chalo 2.0.' Factionalism within unions like the Bhartiya Kisan Union and Samyukt Kisan Morcha, which played prominent roles in 2020, is evident.

Change in Leadership: Prominent figures from the 2020 protests, including Jaginder Singh Ugrahan, Rakesh Tikait, and Gurnam Singh Charuni, are notably absent from the current demonstrations. Instead, leaders like Jagjit Singh Dallewal and Sarwan Singh Pandher have taken the helm.

Heightened Security Measures: Unlike in 2020, where farmers successfully reached the national capital, pre-emptive measures, including barbed wire, cement barricades, and roadblock installations, have been implemented to thwart entry into Delhi. Section 144 has been imposed, and Haryana-Punjab borders sealed.

Government Response: The government initiated negotiations ahead of the Delhi Chalo march this time, with meetings between farmer leaders and Union ministers held on February 8 and 12. While the government agreed to withdraw cases against farmers from the 2020-21 agitation, MSP remains unguaranteed.

India has a balanced approach to Intellectual Property Rights in Trade Deals: GTRI

NEW DELHI: In proposed trade agreements, India's stance on intellectual property rights (IPRs) and pharmaceutical issues strikes a balance between fostering innovation and addressing public health needs, according to a report by the Global Trade Research Initiative (GTRI).

This approach ensures the availability of affordable medicines and supports the growth of the generic medicine industry.

The GTRI paper highlights India's commitment to balancing innovation with public health needs, adopting a flexible interpretation of Trade-Related Aspects of Intellectual Property Rights (TRIPS) to align with its developmental goals, and preventing the establishment of unfair monopolies, especially in the pharmaceutical sector.

India's position underscores a broader endeavor to safeguard traditional knowledge and guarantee access to cost-effective medications, addressing substantial global healthcare and IPR challenges.

The significance of this issue is emphasized by the consistent pressure exerted by developed nations on developing countries like India.

They aim to make additional commitments regarding IPR matters in FTAs beyond those agreed upon in the TRIPS Agreement of the World Trade Organization (WTO).

This phenomenon is commonly referred to as "TRIPS-plus" in trade terminology. Ajay Srivastava, Founder, GTRI, affirmed India's stance, stating that it reflects the country's commitment to balancing interests and fostering economic ties through trade agreements.

India has consistently opposed TRIPS-plus provisions, safeguarding the interests of its domestic generic drug industry in FTAs.

SGPC President condemns anti-Maryada acts by police in Haryana Gurdwaras

JAGMOHAN SINGH
Amritsar

The Shiromani Gurdwara Parbandhak Committee (SGPC) President Harjinder Singh Dhani has condemned the alleged violation of Maryada (conduct) by the government nominated Haryana Sikh Gurdwara Management Committee (HSGMC), at the historical Gurdwaras of Ambala, Sri Manji Sahib and Sri Panjokhara Sahib.

He said that it has been brought to his notice by the Sikh Sangat of Haryana that the police, who were called to stop the farmers struggling for their demands on the Shambhu border, have been given stay in the Sarais (inns) of these Gurdwaras. He said complaints have been received from the Sangat that the police personnel have allegedly consumed alcohol, tobacco etc. inside the Sarais, which have also been recovered from the spot.

Dhani said that the apprehension of the SGPC and Sangat is being proved right and the government is violating the sanctity by influencing the nominated HSGMC and doing arbitrary things inside the Gurdwaras. He said that when the HSGMC was being forcibly formed at the behest of the government by breaking up the SGPC, then the Sikh community had protested in view of the possibility of similar arbitrary actions. He said that the sentiments of the Sikh world have been seriously hurt due to the government nominated HSGMC allowing the entry of police inside the Gurdwaras and the use of alcohol and tobacco in the Sarais by the police.

Dhani said that the Sikh community has always been struggling to make the Gurdwaras free from government interference and if the Gurdwara Committees start violating norms, who will protect the Maryada. He has appealed to Jathedar of Sri Akal Takht Sahib Giani Raghbir Singh to take strict notice of these incidents.

Supreme Court bans Electoral Bond Scheme, declares it unconstitutional

MEENAKSHI BHATTACHARYA
New Delhi

The Supreme Court on February 16 gave its verdict on the petitions challenging the validity of the electoral bond scheme. The Supreme Court has banned the electoral bond scheme, terming it unconstitutional. Giving a unanimous decision, the CJI said that SBI will have to make the information public from April 12, 2019. SBI will have to give this information to the EC and the Election Commission will share this information.

Chief Justice DY Chandrachud said that there are two separate but unanimous decisions. While banning the electoral bond scheme, the Supreme Court said that anonymous electoral bonds are a violation of the right to information and freedom of expression guaranteed by the Constitution. CJI Chandrachud said that the fundamental right to privacy of citizens also includes the right to political privacy and association. In fact, in November last year, a Constitution bench of 5 judges headed by CJI DY Chandrachud had heard this matter. The bench comprised Justice Sanjeev Khanna, B.R. Gavai, J.B. The division bench of Justice Pardiwala and Justice Manoj Mishra had reserved its decision in the case after hearing the arguments for three consecutive days.

The petitioners had argued before the top court that the electoral bond scheme violates citizens' fundamental right to information under Article 19(1), enables backdoor lobbying and promotes corruption. Also, it eliminates the level playing field for opposition political parties.

Responding to the challenge, Solicitor General Tushar Mehta had argued that the objective of this scheme is to reduce cash in the electoral process. S-G Mehta stressed that even the Central Government cannot know the details of donations made through electoral bonds. He had placed on record a letter signed by the SBI chairman saying that the details cannot be accessed without a court order.

During the hearing, CJI Chandrachud had said that there are five important considerations:

1. The need to reduce the cash element in the electoral process.
2. The need to encourage the use of authorized banking channels.
3. The need to encourage the use of banking channels by confidentiality.
4. Transparency.
5. Legalization of bribery.

Apart from this, the CJI had commented that this scheme should not become a legalization of bribery and vendetta between the centers of power and the people well-wishers of that power.

Haryana's Home Minister expressed surprise raising questions about the functioning of the Punjab government

Punjab issued a notice stating, "Do not send drones to our border," questioning whether this has turned into an India-Pakistan situation

SATISH HANDA
Chandigarh

Haryana Home and Health Minister Anil Vij expressed surprise at the approach of the Punjab government on the farmers' issues. He said, "They are greatly surprised that the Punjab government issued a notice saying, "Do not send drones to our border," as if India-Pakistan has happened. If someone attacks our police and escapes to Punjab, cannot we go after and cannot catch them?"

While interacting with the media persons today, Vij said, "When these groups of farmers marched from Amritsar, the Punjab government did not make any effort to stop them anywhere on the way. This means they want to create chaos in Delhi, do they want to go to Delhi and dance again at the Red Fort?"

At the Shambhu border where farmers gathered, Anil Vij said that the farmers say they will go to Delhi. Still, they did not talk when all the ministers and officials came to Chandigarh, so their objective is something else, he added.

Regarding the stone-pelting incident between farmers and police on Tuesday, Home Minister Anil Vij stated that a DSP and 25 police personnel from Haryana were injured, and a senior journalist from Aaj Tak news channel was also injured.

On Rahul Gandhi's statement about guaranteeing MSP if their coalition forms the government, Anil Vij strongly criticized by saying that the MSP report came out in 2004 during the Congress government, which lasted for ten years, so why did his party not take any action then? He added that giving such statements only to incite is not appropriate.

BJP will win 370 seats in Lok Sabha polls, says PM Modi

NEW DELHI: Prime Minister Narendra Modi on February 11 said the BJP -- without its alliance partners -- will win 370 seats in the upcoming Lok Sabha elections.

"The NDA will return to power for the third consecutive term with 400 seats," Modi said while addressing a rally in Madhya Pradesh's Jhabua.

He said that even the opposition leader say that BJP will win 400 seats in the upcoming Lok Sabha election.

"I have not come to Jhabua to campaign. The kind of support BJP has received in Madhya Pradesh shows that the people have trust in BJP's double-engine government," he said.

He also took jibe at Congress saying the grand-old party and its allies have already accepted their defeat and they have started using their last tactic -- 'loot and divide'.

"Knowing the results, the Congress and its allies are now using their last weapon to divide the people in the name of religion, caste and creed. But, the people of this country will not let them succeed," Modi said.

He said that after losing the state assembly election recently, the Congress has witnessed a major crisis and many of them are willing to run away from the party.

He said that people of Madhya Pradesh have given a befitting reply to the Congress during the assembly election however their (Congress) sins will be cleansed after the Lok Sabha elections.

"Congress has always considered the tribals as their vote bank. We do not consider them a vote bank. They are the pride of our country. Our main motto is to uplift the community by providing them their rights. They have been deprived of their rights for several decades," Modi said.

He said that by making changes in the Forest Property Law, the BJP government has returned the rights related to forest land to the tribal society.

During his first visit to Madhya Pradesh ahead of the Lok Sabha election -- Modi who is seeking a third term -- also announced several projects and also laid the foundation stones of some of the projects.

"Congress comes to you (tribals) to seek your support during the elections only. The BJP has set an example by appointing a tribal, Droupadi Murmu, as the President. Congress -- which claims to be sympathisers of the tribals -- had put in all efforts not to let it happen," Modi said in Jhabua -- a tribal dominated area of the state.

Tens of thousands of farmers from Punjab and Haryana are once again making their way to the national capital to demand guaranteed crop prices, renewing a movement from two years ago that succeeded in getting the government to repeal contentious new agricultural laws.

Moreover, the police used tear gas, detained a number of farmers and heavily barricaded border points to block the protesters from entering New Delhi. In an effort to prevent a recurrence of the 2020-2021 protests, which were labeled as one of the largest agitations globally involving over 250 million farmers, stringent security measures have been put in place, putting Delhi on high alert. Section 144 has been imposed, internet services to several districts have been suspended, and the borders with Delhi have been sealed.

This protest emerges about two years after farmers called off their year-long agitation in December 2021, following assurances from the government that their demands would be considered, particularly regarding guaranteed prices for all agricultural produce.

However, farmer unions argue that the promises made by the Modi government have not been fulfilled.

Why are the farmers protesting once again?

In 2020, farmers from various North Indian states, including Haryana, Punjab, and Uttar Pradesh, protested against three new farm laws introduced by the government. These laws were perceived by many farmers as unfair and detrimental to their livelihoods, as they aimed to reform the agricultural sector. The laws undermined the existing system of government-regulated wholesale markets (mandis), lacked legal assurances for Minimum Support Price (MSP), and facilitated more flexible contract farming agreements.

The protesting farmers demanded the repeal of these laws and the implementation of a law mandating MSP for all crops to ensure fair prices. They also sought relief from escalating electricity bills, which exacerbated their financial burdens.

After nearly a year of protests, the government finally agreed to repeal the laws in November 2021 and accepted most of the farmers' demands, marking a significant victory for the agricultural community.

However, two years later, farmer unions argue that the government has not followed through on its promise to legally guarantee Minimum Support Price (MSP). In a video message shared by Kisan Mazdoor Morcha coordinator Sarvan Singh Pandher on X on February 7, he outlined ten demands from the government, including promises made during the previous protest regarding MSP legislation, justice for the events in Lakhimpur Kheri, withdrawal of all Delhi cases against farmers, commitment to not implement the new electricity bill, and exemptions for farmers from pollution regulations. Additionally, there is a new demand for debt relief for farmers and laborers.

Pandher, a key leader of the protest, stated on Saturday that they would peacefully march to Delhi on February 13. He urged farmers and laborers nationwide to join the protest, emphasizing that it would be a decisive battle to secure all their demands. He emphasized the importance of maintaining peaceful protest despite any actions taken by the government, urging patience and perseverance in their fight.

Will look into winding up of the United Nations' office in Kashmir: J&K LG

FW DESK

Lieutenant Governor Manoj Sinha on Sunday expressed the government's intention to examine the possibility of "winding up the office of the United Nations in Kashmir."

Responding to a specific query at a press conference in Jammu about the United Nations Military Observer Group in India and Pakistan (UNMOGIP) office located in Sonwar, Srinagar, LG Sinha stated that the government would consider the matter. The LG's response came in response to question about the closure of UNMOGIP in Kashmir in conjunction with the realization of LG Sinha's earlier promises, such as the reopening of cinema halls in Kashmir, dismissal of government employees involved in terror-related activities, and the hoisting of the tricolour at Lal Chowk.

Instead of forcibly stopping protesting farmers, government should solve their problems: Harjinder Singh Dhami

Condemned Haryana government's forcible action of police firing tear gas shells on farmers

JAGMOHAN SINGH
Amritsar

The Haryana government's forcible action of police firing large number of tear gas shells on the farmers protesting for their demands and suppressing them by using force is against the democratic structure, about which the Centre government should think seriously.

Expressing this, the Shriomani Gurdwara Parbandhak Committee (SGPC) President Harjinder Singh Dhami in a statement issued here today said that agriculture is the backbone of the country and the demands of farmers should not be ignored. Condemning the use of police force to stop the farmers, he said that it is everyone's right to demonstrate peacefully for their rightful demands in a democracy, so the government should immediately solve the problems of the farmers and not complicate the matter further by torturing them.

He said that the farmers of the country have been on the path of struggle with their demands for a long time but the governments have remained ignorant. Farmers of India are known as the breadwinner not only of the country but of the entire world and if these farmers are on the path of struggle today, then it is time for the governments to think. The SGPC President said that the government should focus on solving the farmers' issues instead of forcibly stopping them from peaceful protest.

He also strongly condemned the targeting of journalists in the action taken by the Haryana Police.

Only long-term solution to challenges faced by Indian Muslim Community: Husaini

KAVITA SHARMA
New Delhi

The President of Jamaat-e-Islami Hind (JIH), Syed Sadatullah Husaini has called on the Indian Muslim community to galvanize itself to confront the coming challenges which mandate a long-term solution.

In a video address, Syed Sadatullah Husaini said, "The challenges faced by the Indian Muslim community in the context of approaching elections are increasing by the day. Those promoting communalism and sectarianism are shamelessly corrupting our democratic institutions for narrow political and ideological interests. There is considerable anger and anxiety among Muslims. However, we should not be disappointed or scared. The need of the hour is to exhibit determination and courage, and work continuously to overcome these challenges. It is not the first time the Indian Muslim community has faced such challenges. From the 1857 Mutiny to India's independence, the partition of the country and many other trying instances have been part of our history, and by the Grace of God, we have faced these challenges and overcome them."

The JIH President reminded the Muslim community saying, "We must be aware of our power; it is rooted in our religion and its noble and pristine teachings and principles. We act as a bulwark against oppression and exploitation. Hence, we are targeted and subjected to trials and tribulations. We must understand that there is no quick fix to our challenges. It is only long-term. We must try to bring about change in our immediate circle of influence. I am proposing six action points for the community: (1) Build good relations with your fellow countrymen. Remove their misconceptions about Muslims and Islam and convey the true picture. (2) Try to improve the condition of the Muslim community. Focus on their education, their economy, and removing their weaknesses. Most importantly, improve their moral character and adherence to religion. (3) Play the role of the "Khair-e-Ummat" (best community) (4) Stand up for justice for all the weak and oppressed regardless of religion, caste, and community.

Congress urges Prime Minister to speak directly to farmers

KAVITA SHARMA
New Delhi

Supporting the farmers' agitation for the fulfillment of their demands, the Congress today condemned the BJP governments at the centre and in various states for resorting to authoritarian and dictatorial ways to curb it and prevent their march towards Delhi.

The party urged the Prime Minister Narendra Modi that he should directly talk to the farmers to provide them justice. Party general secretary and MP Randeep Singh Surjewala asked as to why were the farmers not being allowed to lodge their protest when they had a record of always maintaining peace.

Referring to the heavy barricading of Delhi, Surjewala asked, whether the central government considered it as an attack from some enemy country that the roads were being blocked with boulders, heavy vehicles and at several places with deep and wide ditches.

The Congress leader observed that the farmers were only demanding the implementation of the promises that had been made to them two years ago, like the guarantee on the Minimum Support Price and waiving off debts of farmers and farm labourers.

He warned that this was just the beginning of the stir and only the farmers from Haryana and Punjab were participating right now. He said farmers from across the country will soon be joining them and it will be difficult for the government to control the situation.

Bharat Ratna Award for 90s Financial Reforms

DR P S VOHRA

There has been, once again, much discourse recently about the economic reforms of 1991 around us, as the Central Government announced the highest civilian award "Bharat Ratna" for former Prime Minister P.V. Narasimha Rao during the final Parliamentary session prior to the elections. Meanwhile, Modi also praised Manmohan Singh in the Rajya Sabha. It is a fact that the economic reforms of the 90s are indispensable to Indian society and the economy. They are unforgettable. That's why India is now the fifth largest economy. Giving P.V. Narasimha Rao the Bharat Ratna and praising Manmohan Singh holds great significance in the political scenario, but it is also essential to understand that the foresight of both these leaders has shown the path of economic progress to the country in reality after five decades of independence. And today, while following the same footsteps, India has achieved the milestone of being the fifth largest economy in the world. However, in this global race, we have based GDP as the basis, while the other aspect of the picture is that we are taking time until 2047 to develop per capita income.

On June 24, 1991, the day when the then Finance Minister Dr. Manmohan Singh said before presenting his budget in Parliament that "there is no power on Earth that can stop an idea whose time is certain to come," can be understood with this perspective today. It indicates that the then Prime Minister P.V. Narasimha Rao, considering India's weak economic situation at the time, was very convinced that Finance Minister Manmohan Singh should initiate economic liberalization then, or else it would be too late in the future. However, the question still arises many times whether economic reforms in India were delayed. But no one can forget the contribution of journalist Shankar Aiyar's story published in the Indian Express. It would be absolutely wrong, as it established in the common people's minds that India was going through a severe economic crisis, and that's why the Indian government was pledging its gold in foreign banks to increase foreign currency reserves in India. This caused such a stir in Indian society that Narasimha Rao foresaw the fear of democratic opposition and finally initiated economic reforms through Manmohan Singh. It is thanks to these reforms that from the then $270 billion, today India's GDP has reached around $4 trillion.

Here we must understand, beyond political ideology, that the selection of the late Narasimha Rao for the Bharat Ratna is indeed due to the highly positive impacts of the economic reforms he undertook as Prime Minister of India. It is also true that because of these economic reforms, ordinary Indians could realize their dreams in ways that were not possible in the decades post independence. Moreover, if these economic reforms had been initiated some time earlier in this country, India would undoubtedly have been a much bigger economic super power in the world today, both in terms of per capita income and overall economic development. Remember, in the first three to four decades after independence, India's economic growth rate was only around three to four percent, whereas since the 1990s, it has been 7 percent or more. This is why today, the third generation of independent India finds itself economically more prosperous than the previous two generations, and hence, these economic reforms are also regarded as the biggest economic event in the history of independent India. Let's take a step back and recall that era of Indian society when it took 2 to 3 years of waiting just to get a telephone connection at home, and today we are the largest consumers of internet technology on mobile phones in the world. Since the beginning of economic liberalization, the life of the common man has completely changed, with much luxuries added to their personal lives. Gone are the days when there was only one TV at home, and even to watch Doordarshan, one had to go up to the roof to adjust the antenna multiple times. Now, it's the era of satellite TV, and the number of channels is countless. The established craze of multiplexes and malls in metro and large cities has been challenged by sudden innovations in the entertainment sector post the COVID-19 pandemic, giving OTT platforms a prominent position. The trend of consumer purchases on occasions like Diwali and Dhanteras is rapidly changing each year. Economic analysts start to anticipate a slowdown in India if there is a decrease in the percentage of sales of two-wheelers and cars during these festivals. The allure of India's vast market, where the purchasing power of its consumers holds significant sway, is captivating the entire world. Behind the reality of the present time, the cornerstone of economic reforms since the 1990s is "LPG" (Liberalization, Privatization, Globalization). It must also be understood that the utmost importance was given to liberalization during those reforms because it encouraged private investment first and then attracted foreign investors to India. Consequently, the Indian economy stands at a point where the central government allocates a significant amount of 10 lakh crore in the budget for capital investment, while private investment is continuously increasing. As a result, India is now the most attractive investment destination for foreign investors.

Here, if we don't acknowledge the immense progress of the Indian capital market over the past two to three decades, a significant aspect of the economic reforms of the 90s would be overlooked. However, Dr. Manmohan Singh, argues that the growth of the stock market does not reflect the real progress of the economy. Nevertheless, it must now be understood that today India's capital market is also moving towards self-reliance to some extent. Now, investing in SIP (Systematic Investment Plan) holds its own attraction among Indian investors. It's worth noting that investing in SIP through mutual funds significantly reduces the risk in the stock market. This is why the perception of foreign investors towards the Indian capital market has also changed.

In spite of all these, if today India is unable to find a real solution to poverty, then one reason behind it is also that the private sector has benefited the most from the economic reforms of the 1990s. As a result of this a problem like economic disparity in India, which is perceived as a gap between the rich and the poor, has greatly increased. It is very surprising that according to GDP levels, a country with the world's fifth-largest economy also holds approximately 20 percent share in global poverty, and although we have left countries like England behind in GDP, in terms of per capita income, we are still far behind because perhaps there was no solid option to increase per capita income with the economic reforms of the 1990s. It is not very logical to always walk with India's vast population in a negative aspect because the purchasing capacity of the middle-class individual amidst this population is the main cornerstone of economic development, so why is the eradication of the poor strata of the population not expected? Perhaps the answer to this lies only with the creator of economic reforms, the late P.V. Narasimha Rao, and the real implementer of these reforms, Dr. Singh.

Ultimately, we must understand that the election season has almost begun, and if economic issues are influencing political decisions and discussions at this time, it is a good start for a clean democracy. Yet, how much does the common man understand politics? In this same session, while the current government honors PV Narasimha Rao, the architect of economic reforms, with the Bharat Ratna, it is the same government led by economist Manmohan Singh that, through a white paper, ranks the 10 years of his leadership as the lowest in India's economic progress.

'One Nation, One Election' offers multiple benefits

NEW DELHI: With the Tamil Nadu Assembly having adopted the resolution against the Central government's proposed 'One Nation, One Election' policy, the spotlight is once again on the debate over the feasibility of this 'critical reform' that the Prime Minister Narendra Modi-led regime is keen to go ahead with.

While the resolution moved by Tamil Nadu Chief Minister M.K. Stalin highlights various points of 'objections' to the move, it 'conveniently' chooses to ignore the benefits that the proposed electoral exercise offers.

'One Nation, One Election' refers to the idea of simultaneously holding the general and state elections. A high-level committee (HLC), headed by former President of India, Ram Nath Kovind, is already in the process of exploring the possibility of 'One Nation, One Election'.

The panel constituted by the Modi government has so far consulted a galaxy of constitutional and legal luminaries of the country as part of the exercise. The panel has held fresh consultations with the state election commissions this week in a bid to expedite the process.

The parties opposed to this reform agenda of the Modi government have not yet offered any substantial ground to punch holes in this plan. They appear to be deliberately trying to shift the public focus away from the positive sides of this endeavour that the government has so far showcased.

One of the most important benefits that the Tamil Nadu Assembly seems to have overlooked while passing the resolution against 'One Nation, One Election' is that synchronising the Lok Sabha and Assembly election cycles will help the government fast-track the development schemes and the programmes aimed at augmentation of financial system of the country and the states.

Farooq Abdullah again skips ED summons in money laundering case

FW DESK

Former Jammu and Kashmir Chief Minister and National Conference (NC) chief Dr Farooq Abdullah, has once again skipped the Enforcement Directorate's (ED) summons in connection with a money laundering case. This marks the second instance in the past month that the 86-year-old politician has not appeared before the ED.

Abdullah was required to be present at the ED office in Srinagar on Tuesday, but he informed the authorities that he was not in Srinagar and, therefore, unable to comply with the summons. Earlier, on January 11, he had cited health reasons for missing the ED summons.

The ED has been investigating Abdullah in connection with the alleged misappropriation of funds from the Jammu and Kashmir Cricket Association during his tenure as its President between 2004 and 2009. The case is based on an FIR filed by the Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI), which accused Abdullah and former JKCA office-bearers of siphoning off over Rs 113 crore in funds.

The scandal came to light in 2012, and in 2022, the ED filed a chargesheet against Farooq Abdullah. The ongoing investigation continues to probe the financial irregularities within the J&K cricket body.

PRABHASH RANJAN SAYS PARLIAMENTARY PANEL'S ADVICE ON RESEARCH ADDRESS PRESSING ISSUES EFFECTIVELY

Time to strengthen legal education

The Parliamentary Standing Committee on Personnel, Public Grievances, Law, and Justice recently submitted a significant report on legal education, making several path-breaking recommendations to strengthen the quality of legal education in India. Since Independence, legal education, unlike medicine and engineering, has not been a top priority for India's policymakers.

Things started to change for the better in the 1990s with the advent of the national law universities (NLUs) in India. Buoyed by the winds of liberalisation and globalisation, the Indian economy in the 1990s threw up many new opportunities for lawyers, which, in turn, led to bright young students opting to study law right after school. Several NLU graduates got placed in high-paying law firm jobs while many others went abroad to study at top universities, with quite a few bagging prestigious scholarships such as Rhodes and Chevening.

However, the same cannot be said about hundreds of other law schools nationwide that essentially represent a "sea of institutionalized mediocrity". Most of the NLUs too, while successfully attracting excellent students, have failed to emerge as centres of excellence in legal research. This is borne by the fact that only two Indian law schools, Jindal Global Law School and National Law School of India University, figure in the QS rankings of the top 250 law schools worldwide.

A new regulator

Against this backdrop, a key recommendation of the committee is to limit the powers of the Bar Council of India (BCI) to regulate legal education. The BCI's role in regulating legal education that pertains to acquiring basic eligibility to practise in the courts is indispensable.

However, several other facets of legal education, especially at the post-graduation level, do not pertain to litigation. The committee recommends, and rightly so, that regulating these parts of legal education should be entrusted to an independent body called the National Council for Legal Education and Research (NCLER). This proposed body will develop qualitative benchmarks to regulate legal education. Eminent legal academicians who deposed before the parliamentary committee batted for the creation of the NCLER. In addition to judges and practising lawyers, the NCLER should have eminent law professors with an unimpeachable track record of research and serving legal education.

Bolstering research

Many of India's 1,700-odd law schools principally focus on teaching, with scant attention to research. Consequently, India is chiefly the consumer of legal knowledge generated in the West, not its producer. An important data point that reveals this is that out of more than 800 law journals globally indexed in Scopus (an internationally recognised database that lists leading journals in all fields) barely a handful are Indian law journals. This shows the abysmally poor level of research in India's law schools.

The committee emphasises the need to prioritise and promote research in legal education, which, in turn, will lead to better teaching outcomes and help students develop a critical perspective. As Albert Einstein said, "The value of a college education is not the learning of many facts but the training of the mind to think" To strengthen research, there is a need to recruit "world class global faculty who are top researchers". While this is easier said than done, the fact that the committee has highlighted this aspect is an encouraging development.

As the committee remarks, augmenting the research ecosystem in our law schools undoubtedly involves a greater need for state funding. Bolstering research will also equip India's law schools to thrive in the globalising world. The committee is cognisant of the effect of globalisation on legal education. It thus correctly recommends developing and delivering a global curriculum, promoting student and faculty international exchange programmes, incorporating more international law courses in the curriculum, and increasing students' exposure to different legal systems.

Changing mindsets

The parliamentary committee's suggestions are like a breath of fresh air that may help many law professors keep their chin up. In some form or the other, such suggestions have been made before. But none of this will be implemented as long as higher education does not become the topmost priority for everyone.

Additionally, legal education reform is impossible without these: first, the leadership positions in our university's law faculties and law schools should be held by passionate, charismatic, and visionary academicians who inspire and create an enabling and supportive environment that allows younger academicians to realise their potential as outstanding teachers and brilliant researchers. Sadly, barring a few notable exceptions, the deans of law faculties and vice-chancellors of law universities in India have failed to provide professional leadership. These flawed academic leaders detest talented professors and are the biggest bottleneck in striving for excellence. No amount of money or perks can overcome such a primary institutional deficiency.

Second, to boost the culture of legal research in our law schools, there should be complete academic freedom and autonomy. As Jawaharlal Nehru said, "a university stands for humanism, for tolerance, for reason, for the adventure of ideas and for the search of truth". A law school or any other academic institution can accomplish this goal only if academicians are free to offer their well-researched views without any fear, even if these views are at variance with popularly held beliefs in society or contest the dominant ideas of the time.

The parliamentary committee's intervention is a welcome development, and one expects all stakeholders to work together to improve the quality of legal education in India.

DAMINI CHOPRA EXPLAINS WHY MENSTRUATION LEAVE RAISES AWARENESS BUT RISKS EXACERBATING GENDER DISPARITIES

A demand that could hamper gender equality

The Sabrimala temple issue was one that ruled our collective consciousness. It was unfathomable that menstruating women were deemed 'unfit' to enter a temple. Echoes of 'menstruation is not a disease, but a natural phenomena' could be heard all around. This was a case that highlighted the ongoing struggle to eliminate discriminatory practices related to menstruation, and to promote gender equality.

The demand for paid leave for menstruation works to undermine it.

Menstrual cycles can be challenging — almost debilitating for some — but to collectively label all those belonging to a gender without considering the potential adverse effects, is trivialising the women empowerment movement.

On the global gender gap

The World Economic Forum's Global Gender Gap Report 2021 says that the gender global gap has widened (instead of shrinking). In the current situation, it would take the world 135.6 years to achieve gender equality. Looking at it specifically at the workforce level, a woman earns 84 cents for every dollar that a man makes. The participation of women in the labour force is significantly lower than that of men, and even fewer women hold leadership positions. If one adds mandatory paid leave for periods to this, it would end up further dissuading companies from hiring women.

If the government ratifies 'special status' for menstruating women, it validates the social stigma around menstruation. It would exacerbate period shaming in a country where large swathes of people (both men and women) consider menstruation to be 'impure'.

The most recent National Family Health Survey (NFHS) report has highlighted how approximately 50% of women between the ages of 15 to 24 in India continue to rely on the use of cloth for menstrual protection. Experts caution that reusing cloth can increase the risk of contracting multiple infections, attributing this practice to a combination of insufficient awareness and societal taboo around menstruation. Girls are often compelled to leave school or face social exclusion during their menstrual cycles.

Arguments in favour of paid leave for menstruation will claim that granting special status to menstruation would aim to create subject awareness. But this would only magnify it. It could turn out to be another well-meaning step, but one that ends up widening the gender gap inadvertently.

The case of Japan

There are countries such as Japan that provide leave for painful menstruation-but it is mostly unpaid, and unused. Women claim that they are reluctant to avail this leave and 'broadcast' that they are on their period, for the fear of sexual harassment. This is the situation (today), even though this policy was introduced in Japan more than seven decades ago. Data show(s) that a mere 0.9% of women in the workforce avail menstrual leave days in Japan. As per the World Economic Forum's ranking in 2019, Japan ranked 121 out of 153 in terms of gender equality. It has slipped to the 125th position in 2023. It is interesting to note that though young women in Japan have higher education levels than men, it is in the workforce that disparities creep in. Women in Japan are less likely to be employed (even with the same credentials) than men, and are often paid lesser.

Let us assume that we have in place paid leave for periods. Now comes the implementation. Who is to say when such leave would be taken rightfully, and when they would be misused? Further, who is to say which enforcement methods would be acceptable, when used by the employer? In 2020, 66 girl students in an institute in Bhuj in Kutch, Gujarat, were forced to strip to check who was menstruating. This mirrors an incident in 2017 in Muzaffarnagar, where 70 girls in a residential school were compelled to undress by staff to check for menstruation.

A fight that continues

In the recent past, women have fought to be on the front line in a war. The Supreme Court of India even urged the government to enable equal evaluation of women, and to have them undergo the same standards of testing as men. In response, the government argued that women are not suitable for ground combat roles. Women in corporate organisations are fighting for pay that is the equivalent to that drawn by their male counterparts.

As a woman, I understand the issue and am empathetic towards period pain and symptoms. But I am averse to terming it a blanket biological disadvantage. Recognising the diverse nature of menstrual experiences is essential. Tailoring support and being accommodative on a case-by-case basis promotes inclusivity, while also addressing the individual needs of those navigating their (difficult) periods.

BOOKS: REVIEW

Beyond the gold: Neeraj Chopra and India's athletics ascent

In "The Neeraj Chopra Story," veteran sports journalist and former athlete Norris Pritam delves into the life of the iconic Indian javelin thrower, Neeraj Chopra, with an intimate and heartfelt narrative that transcends the traditional sports biography. The book, graced with a foreword by the legendary boxer M.C. Mary Kom, follows Chopra's journey from a modest upbringing in Haryana to becoming a global star and Olympic gold medallist, capturing the essence of his remarkable ascent in the world of athletics.

Pritam's prose, characterized by its simplicity and ease, invites readers into Chopra's world, offering a fresh perspective on his life and career despite the extensive media coverage surrounding him. The author's inability to cover the Tokyo Olympics firsthand does not detract from the narrative. Instead, Pritam compensates with diligent research and exclusive insights into Chopra's life, engaging with those who have been instrumental in his development as an athlete and a person.

The book pays homage to Indian athletics' rich history, contextualizing Chopra's success by revisiting the stories of past greats like Milkha Singh and P.T. Usha, whose near misses at Olympic glory underscore the challenges faced by Indian athletes on the global stage. Through these tales, Pritam sheds light on the systemic issues that have historically hindered India's athletic achievements, emphasizing that the nation's lack of Olympic medals is not for want of talent.

Pritam's narrative style seamlessly blends his observational prowess with personal anecdotes, making for a compelling read. His recounting of the first encounter with Chopra adds a personal touch to the biography, while interviews with Chopra's family, friends, and mentors paint a comprehensive picture of the athlete's life, from his humble beginnings to his monumental achievements on the world stage.

The inclusion of perspectives from Chopra's rivals and legends of the sport, like Klaus Wolfermann, lends credibility and depth to the narrative. Pritam also addresses controversies, such as the javelin use during the Tokyo

Olympics, with sensitivity and insight, clearing the air on issues that have clouded Chopra's achievements.

One of the book's strengths lies in its portrayal of Chopra as a catalyst for a javelin revolution in India, highlighting the emergence of talented throwers inspired by his success. This narrative thread not only celebrates Chopra's accomplishments but also looks optimistically towards the future of Indian athletics, bolstered by his influence.

Pritam's book is more than a sports biography; it's a testament to the power of determination, hard work, and the impact of one individual's success on an entire sport's landscape in a country hungry for Olympic glory. The detailed accounts of the struggles faced by previous generations of athletes serve as a poignant reminder of the progress made and the long road ahead.

The book is an essential read not only for sports enthusiasts but for anyone interested in the journey of overcoming adversity to achieve greatness. Norris Pritam's meticulous research, combined with his narrative skill, makes this biography a captivating and inspiring account of one of India's finest athletes. As the world gears up for another Olympic year, this book stands as a timely tribute to a young man who has already left an indelible mark on the world of sports and the hearts of millions, promising to inspire future generations to dream big and aim for the stars.

BPCL to set up green hydrogen plant in Cochin airport

COCHIN: The Cochin International Airport Ltd (CIAL), the world's first airport fully powered by solar energy, has entered a Memorandum of Understanding with Bharat Petroleum Corporation Limited (BPCL) for setting up a Green Hydrogen plant in the premises of Cochin airport.

This collaborative effort, combining technological prowess and infrastructure, will result in the world's first Green Hydrogen plant and fuelling station located within an airport setting, the CIAL said. Green hydrogen, produced from water using renewable energy sources, is recognised as a future fuel and aligns with zero-carbon energy strategies. CIAL now has a cumulative installed capacity of 50 MW

-- solar and hydel put together -- producing two hundred thousand units of power a day. Ever since the installation of its first plant with a capacity of 12 MW, it has been augmenting its capabilities and now inked an MOU for a strategic collaboration with BPCL for setting up a 1, 000 KW pilot project at the airport premises.

Under the agreement, BPCL will oversee the establishment of the integrated Green Hydrogen plant and fuelling station at Kochi Airport, providing technology and managing the operations.

CIAL will contribute suitable land, water, and green energy resources.

The initial output of the plant will be utilised for powering vehicles within the airport.

"As pioneers in sustainable aviation, CIAL is happy to start a groundbreaking journey with BPCL towards establishing the country's first Green Hydrogen plant in an airport at CIAL," said CIAL Managing Director, S. Suhas.

He also said that this strategic collaboration underscores CIAL's commitment to green energy and propels closer towards a zero-carbon future in the aviation landscape.

BPCL's Chairman & Managing Director, G. Krishnakumar, highlighted the collaboration as a pivotal moment in the journey towards sustainable solutions.

Khara said the Confidence Group is also actively engaging in partnership with key players in the green hydrogen ecosystem including technology providers, energy companies and research institutions.

Many States yet to implement High Security Registration Plates scheme

Many States in India are yet to implement the Scheme of +High Security Registration Plates (HSRP)+ for vehicles, which would highlight 'road safety for commuters, security of citizens and the nation's safety,' according to Dr Kamaljeet Singh Soi, Member of National Road Safety Council and founder-member, Raahat (The Safe Community Foundation).

The Government of India had, in March 2001, issued a notification under provisions of section 41(6) of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, and introduced a new Scheme regulating issuance and affixation of HSR plates, he stated, adding that with Supreme Court intervention, several States had implemented this scheme from 2021.

The Ministry of Road Transport and Highways (MoRTH) had issued Gazette Notification and S.O. in December 2018 making the HSR plates mandatory on all vehicles sold on or after April 1, 2019.

However, a few States including Maharashtra - which is the financial hub of India and has 2.0 crore vehicles-- are yet to finalise and commence using the HSR plates.

Dr Soi told media here recently that the Maharashtra Government had floated a tender for selection of HSRP suppliers several times but failed to draw any bids, even as the tender published on

The Maharashtra Government had floated a tender for selection of HSRP suppliers several times but failed to draw any bids, even as the tender published on August 28, 2023 "is still live."

August 28, 2023 "is still live." In fact, the Maharashtra Government had extended the last date for this tender bid submission several times in the last 5 months, he said, adding that no State Government in the country has been able to implement the HSRP scheme by selecting a supplier through tender process in the last 8-9 years.

However, some States including the latest being Karnataka have been implementing this Scheme through the OEM dealer network which has multiple OEM-authorized HSRP suppliers, rather than one single supplier through the tender process, he said.

Dr Soi appealed to the Maharashtra Government to 'immediately adopt the OEM channel to implement the HSRP scheme on old vehicles in the State.'

India is often called the "Diabetic Capital of the World" and a study by ICMR revealed that India has over 101 million people with diabetes. However, some Indian companies are projecting effective nature solutions through their products.

Nitta Gelatin India Limited is highlighting its 'First in the world' patented +Collagen D-Peptide for Diabetes care+, which has been clinically studied as an add-on therapy for management of Type-II diabetes, according to Saaj U. S., Marketing Manager.

Yogesh Mudras, Managing Director, Informa Markets India, said 100 exhibitors from 20 countries were in this Expo which was expecting 5,000-plus visitors and 40 speakers.

He said India possessed a vibrant ingredients market that encompassed a diverse array of vitamins, minerals, botanicals and plant/animal-derived components. "Agriculture stands as one of the country's largest industries supplying abundant raw materials essential for production of nutraceuticals and functional foods," he added.

"India's industry is poised for significant expansion with the projected growth of this sector by 11.4% annually through 2030," Mudras said in underscoring the immense potential for further development, and also highlighting importance of initiatives driving innovation and sustainability within the industry.

RBI Deputy Governor warns MFIs on High Interest Rate Practices

NEWDELHI: Reserve Bank of India (RBI) Deputy Governor M. Rajeshwar Rao has strongly criticised Microfinance Institutions (MFIs) for imposing higher interest rates on borrowers, warning against irresponsible practices within the sector. Expressing concern, Rao highlighted instances where certain MFIs have significantly increased their profit margins under the new regulatory framework, cautioning that any misuse of regulatory freedom would result in regulatory intervention. In 2021, the RBI granted entities full autonomy over interest rates for microloans by lifting the previous cap of 24 per cent. However, Rao emphasised the need for responsible lending practices, noting that while lenders swiftly passed on increased costs to borrowers, they were hesitant to extend the benefits envisioned under the new framework. Additionally, Rao addressed concerns regarding Non-Banking Finance Companies (NBFCs) advocating for bank-like status, emphasising that NBFCs play distinct economic roles and should not aim to emulate banks. He further highlighted issues within peer-to-peer (P2P) lending among NBFCs, pointing out deviations from regulatory guidelines. Rao stressed the importance of educating lenders about credit risks and condemned any breaches of licensing conditions or regulatory standards within the NBFC-P2P sector. He warned against downplaying risks to lenders and reiterated the RBI's commitment to upholding regulatory integrity and consumer protection.

Indian banks face a slowdown in growth and profit margins as deposits lag

MUMBAI: Indian banks face a slowdown in growth and profit margins as deposits lag despite higher interest rates. In the 2023 October-to-December quarter, most major banks reported income gains, but net interest margins (NIM) declined due to tighter liquidity and rising funding costs. Among large banks, only Punjab National Bank saw an increase in NIM for the fiscal's third quarter, according to data compiled by S&P Global Market Intelligence. State Bank of India, India's largest bank by assets, posted lower net income after factoring in a 71-billion-rupee expense related to a wage bill increase. The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) recently barred banks and non-bank financial companies from investing in AIFs holding the lenders' customer assets. This move aims to prevent loan evergreening. Lenders must divest AIF holdings within a month or set aside provisions. Industry groups anticipate the directive will affect billions in bank investments and potentially hinder growth, the report said. Indian bank deposit growth continues to lag behind credit growth. RBI data released in December 2023 shows an 11% deposit growth in fiscal 2022-2023, compared to 15% credit growth.

During the inauguration of the Digital India Future Skills Summit at Gauhati University, Chandrasekhar highlighted Assam's pivotal role in emerging technological advancements, attributing the development to the leadership of Chief Minister Himanta Biswa Sarma. Underlining the significance of preparing the youth for the burgeoning sectors of electronics, semiconductors, cybersecurity, and AI, Chandrasekhar emphasised Prime Minister Modi's leadership in fostering growth opportunities in these domains. The summit, organised under the auspices of the Ministry of Electronics and IT (MeitY), served as a platform for discussions on strategies to nurture future-ready talent not only for India but also for global markets.

Reflecting on India's technological evolution, Chandrasekhar noted the shift from being technology importers to exporters, particularly in the mobile phone and technology sectors. He highlighted Prime Minister Modi's ambitious vision to propel India as the world's third-largest economy by the next decade, underscoring the pivotal role of the country's youth in achieving this milestone. CAIT Urges Finance Minister to Delay Enforcement of IT Payment Provisions

Due to the lack of clarity surrounding the law's applicability and related provisions, CAIT called for the suspension of its implementation until sufficient clarification and nationwide information dissemination are achieved
The Confederation of All India Traders (CAIT) has stepped up its efforts to address concerns surrounding Income Tax Law 43(B)H among traders nationwide, including those in Delhi. CAIT representatives engaged with Union Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman to convey these concerns and propose a solution, on Wednesday. The association appealed to the government to postpone the implementation of the law from April 1, 2024, to April 1, 2025, providing traders with a one-year deferral period. This delay would provide traders with sufficient time to understand and comply with the law effectively, CAIT argued. During the meeting, Praveen Khandelwal, Secretary General, CAIT, recognised the government's progressive move in introducing the provision aimed at improving financial liquidity for micro and small enterprises (MSMEs). However, he stressed the importance of raising awareness among traders about this beneficial provision and suggested a one-year postponement of its implementation. Finance Minister Sitharaman attentively listened to the concerns raised by Khandelwal and assured a comprehensive consideration of the matter. In its memorandum, CAIT welcomed the government's decision, emphasising the significance of ensuring timely payments to the MSME sector within 45 days to maintain uninterrupted cash flow for traders.

Lower Government Borrowings to Stabilise Inflation, Boost Investments: RBI Governor

NEWDELHI: According to RBI Governor Shaktikanta Das, lower government borrowings compared to street predictions will open up more resources in the banking system, facilitating private sector investments and inflation stabilisation. Das expressed confidence in the Reserve Bank's ability to manage the anticipated surge in foreign inflows into Indian government debt following their inclusion in JP Morgan's bond index, reported ET.

The governor noted that the current borrowing levels are below initial market projections, suggesting that this reduction would enhance liquidity in the banking sector, facilitating increased credit availability for private sector endeavours. He underscored the potential of reduced borrowing to contribute to inflation moderation, although refrained from specifying the extent of its impact. Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman's interim Budget for 2024-25 proposes a borrowing target of Rs 14.13 lakh crore through dated securities, lower than the previous year's gross borrowing estimate of Rs 15.43 lakh crore, driven by escalating tax revenues and adherence to fiscal consolidation objectives. Das highlighted the crucial role of borrowing quantum in shaping monetary policy, citing, "While making monetary policy it is one of the factors which is taken into consideration. I would say it is growth inducing, and it helps in moderating inflation levels."

During the meeting, Praveen Khandelwal, Secretary General, CAIT, recognised the government's progressive move in introducing the provision aimed at improving financial liquidity for micro and small enterprises (MSMEs). However, he stressed the importance of raising awareness among traders about this beneficial provision and suggested a one-year postponement of its implementation. Finance Minister Sitharaman attentively listened to the concerns raised by Khandelwal and assured a comprehensive consideration of the matter. In its memorandum, CAIT welcomed the government's decision, emphasising the significance of ensuring timely payments to the MSME sector within 45 days to maintain uninterrupted cash flow for traders.

Co-operative Banks in India: Relevance & Challenges

JAG MOHAN THAKEN
Established with the noble objective of liberating the poor from the clutches of dodgy and mammoth moneylenders, who demanded high pitch interest rates from the lower strata people, the cooperative banks in India have played a pivotal role in uplifting the poorest of the poor and the socio-economically underprivileged strata. However, there are commercial and nationalized banks also spreading up in most of the areas of the country, but in the earlier stages they were found to be serving the higher ranks and files of the society. The poor were very much hesitant even to enter into these high-profile banks. So, the need was felt to expand such banks which can serve at the lowest level. To fulfil the gap, Cooperative and Regional Rural Banks were inflated, which are serving the lower strata masses in an exemplary mode. The major difference in the working and serving between a commercial bank and a cooperative bank lies in their approach to revenue generation. Where commercial banks follow the rule of earning maximum profits, cooperative banks work on the principle of "Service with No Pick-Pocketing". The primary role of cooperative banks is to extend financial assistance to the needy masses at the most nominal interest rates with a smiling service.

The Cooperative banks in India work at three levels- The State Cooperative Bank functions as the apex body and works as a bridge between District Cooperative Banks and RBI. District Cooperative Banks operate at the district level and their primary role is to dispense funds to the primary cooperative banks. The third wing and the actual body, Primary Agricultural Credit Societies (PACSs), which functions at the grassroots level directly cater to the local populace by offering loans and other services. Initially, the cooperative banks were to assist the populace in tiny offices, having one table and one chair for the secretary at PACS, who worked with a lengthy ledger-'Bahi Khata' to keep all types of records, with powers of small financing just to uplift them upto a level of self-dependency. But now they have emerged to compete with the commercial banks in all fields, having an adorable office set-up with a computerized system. Union Home and Cooperation Minister, Amit Shah, has taken more than 54 initiatives in a short span of time. "Computerization of PACS" project is one of the major initiatives of the Ministry under which 63,000 PACS are being computerized with the total financial outlay of Rs.2,516 Crores. Till now, more than 12,000 PACS have been computerized across 28 States/UTs. The Ministry of Cooperation had invited the Chairpersons of around 250 beneficiary PACS and their spouses from 24 States and 2 UTs across the country to witness the Republic Day celebrations. On the eve of Republic Day, Union Minister of State for Cooperation B.L. Verma interacted and had dinner with the Special Guests. During the interaction, Verma highlighted many significant initiatives taken by the Ministry of Cooperation. He also assured the Chairpersons of PACS about the Ministry of Cooperation unwavering commitment to furthering the strengthening of the cooperative sector. Some of the Chairpersons shared their experiences about the benefits derived from the PACS Computerization Project to their respective Societies. A case study of Haryana's Apex Bank

What the baseline reality is? Interacting with the Ground Post, the newly joined Managing Director of "The Haryana State Co-operative Apex Bank Ltd." (HARCO BANK), Dr. Prafulla Ranjan, claims that we are fully complying with the government's guidelines and policies. While issuing a brief statement about the activities of the bank, Dr. Ranjan informed that he had assumed charge of the post of Managing Director on 01.12.2023. He further divulged that at present, the Co-operative credit structure is working at three levels, in which at the state level, HARCO Bank, which has 13 branches and two extension counters in Chandigarh and Panchkula, and at the district level, 19 District Central Co-operative Banks (CCBs) are working with a network of 573 branches and 26 extension counters, 781 Primary Agricultural Credit Societies (PACS), catering to the financial needs of 11.70 lakh members mostly living in rural areas of Haryana. There are 1546 sales centres at PACS level, which are a strong base for providing fertilizers, seeds, pesticides etc. to the farmers in the state. To meet the credit requirements of short-term co-operative credit structure, various types of activities are undertaken by the bank like mobilizing deposits, raising/borrowing funds from various higher financing agencies like RBI/NABARD, State Government etc. Dr. Ranjan said that with a view to provide hassle free ser-

VICES to the people of the state, the Core Banking System (CBS), RTGS, NEFT, SMS Alert, ATM, Micro ATM Card facility have been introduced in Harco Bank and 19 district central cooperative bank branches. Mobile Van Banking is operational and HARCO Bank has started providing the facility of Phone pay, G Pay on UPI on mobile apps to its customers. Sharing the figures of the bank, Dr. Ranjan stated that the Paid-up Share Capital of the HARCO bank was Rs. 363.13 crore as on 31.01.2024 and the bank's own funds as on January end was Rs. 1315.89 crore. With a solid working Capital of the bank as on 31.01.2024 Rs. 10365.51 crore, bank has earned a net profit of Rs 88.52 crore for the year 2022-23 whereas it was Rs. 67.84 Crore for the year 2021-22. With a strong base of the deposits of the bank Rs. 5021.41 crore as on 31.1.2024, the bank during the Rabi Season 2023-24 has advanced a sum of Rs. 3773.10 crore against the disbursement target of Rs.7673.00 crore till 31.01.2024 and we are sure that we will achieve the target upto March end. To boost the 'Beti Bachao - Beti Padhao' mission of Prime Minister, Narendar Modi, HARCO Bank is soon going to implement 'Hamari Bithiya' scheme, under which more interest will be given on recurring deposits / fixed deposits for minor female children, so that the said deposits can be used for their bright future, added Dr. Ranjan.

Challenges before Co-operative Banking channel
Despite these charming working figures of the Apex HARCO Bank, its root level PACS are facing hardship in recovering the loan amount in time and the Kharif Season recovery of District Central Co-operative Banks (DCCBs) as on 31.01.2024 remained 23.99%, which shows the critical position of these institutions. Commenting over this, HARCO Bank's MD Dr. Ranjan says that there are some issues which are being resolved and the recovery position will improve upto the March end, however, the recovery position of the Apex bank is very appreciable and the NPA of the Apex bank is less than one percent. Now the question arises, what are the reasons behind lower recovery at PACS level?
Despite their substantial role in the agriculture sector, cooperative banks- especially PACS, particularly in the rural sector, often face challenges in risk management. This leads to issues like default in loans and hindrance in their ability to lend effectively. When analysed, it was found that failure of crops due to natural calamities, faulty Fasal Bima Yojna, unnecessary insurance claim rejection by the insurance companies and a longer delay in settlement of claims lead to the default in loan repayment by the farmers. Uncertainty of MSP also creates resentment and feeling of revenge in the farmers, which causes non-repayment of the loan. Farmers' agitation and luring slogans of loan waiver by

Carbon Tax Imposition Unjust For Developing Nations: CEA

NEW DELHI: Chief Economic Advisor V Anantha Nageswaran expressed grave reservations regarding the imposition of tariffs by certain advanced economies on high-carbon goods from other sources. He argued against penalising developing countries, emphasising their significant contribution to global economic activities. Nageswaran underscored the vulnerability of developing countries transitioning towards renewable energy, especially amidst geopolitical tensions. The CEA highlighted the vital role developing nations play in sustaining lives and businesses in developed countries, questioning the fairness of their treatment in return. "If so, what is the premium they are getting in return for taking action on their part to ensure economic activity in the developed world? So, that is also something we need to think about and obviously, the kind of premium that the developed world is contemplating paying to the developing world cannot be the carbon border adjustment mechanism," Nageswaran said.

the politicians to woo the farmers' votes are also major factors in default for recovery. Other loanee-small shopkeepers, agricultural labourers and persons involved in small scale service sectors, in the villages are also dependent upon the farmers, hence they also get caught in default, resulting in deterioration of the health of PACS. But, now the central government, through the Union Home & Co-operative Minister Amit Shah's 54 initiatives, providing lucrative schemes, has undertaken to improve the health and working of PACS and make them profitable. Implementing best practices in timely risk assessment, regular loan monitoring, and effective debt collection will be key to strengthening the financial resilience of these root level institutions and safeguarding sustainable growth in the agricultural sector. S N Sharma, a retired AGM, having a vast experience in rural banking, now associated with HARCO BANK as a Resource Person in Business Diversification and Product Innovation cell, says, "A bright future is awaiting ahead for the Co-operative Banking Sector - especially the PACS, as the co-operative banks are present in each nook and corner of state mostly in remote areas where the commercial banks feel shy to work. Their presence is upto grassroots level. These are the backbone of the rural economy." But, keeping in mind the relevancy of these institutions, the strenuous efforts are required from grassroots to top level. This is the only solution. Jag Mohan Thaken is a Haryana based retired Senior Bank Manager, views are personal.

Russian Opposition leader and Putin critic Alexei Navalny dies in prison

MOSCOW: Alexei Navalny, Russia's most famous Opposition leader, died on Friday after collapsing and losing consciousness at the penal colony north of the Arctic Circle where he was serving a long jail term, the Russian prison service said.

Navalny, 47, rose to prominence more than a decade ago by lampooning President Vladimir Putin and the Russian elite whom he accused of vast corruption, avarice and opulence.

The Federal Penitentiary Service of the Yamalo-Nenets Autonomous District said in a statement that Navalny "felt unwell" after a walk at the IK-3 penal colony in Kharp, about 1,900 km (1,200 miles) north east of Moscow.

He lost consciousness almost immediately, it said. "All necessary resuscitation measures were carried out, which did not yield positive results. Doctors of the ambulance stated the death of the convict," the prison service said, adding that causes of death were being established.

Putin has been told about Navalny's death, Kremlin spokesman Dmitry Peskov said. Putin, who is running for re-election in a month, was shown on a television clip visiting a factory in the Urals.

Supporters of Navalny said they could not confirm he was dead, but that if he was then they believed he had been killed.

"Russian authorities publish a confession that they killed Alexei Navalny in prison," Navalny aide Leonid Volkov wrote on social media. "We do not have any way to confirm it or to prove this isn't true."

Condemnation quickly poured in from Western governments.

"Dreadful news about Alexei Navalny... If the report about his position leader Alexei Navalny was "murder", and said that he believed harsh treatment had led to his demise.

"My sincere belief is that it was the conditions of detention that led to Navalny's death... His sentence was supplemented by murder," Muratov said, offering condolences to his family.

Navalny earned admiration from Russia's disparate opposition for voluntarily returning to Russia in 2021 from Germany, where he had been treated for what Western laboratory tests showed was an attempt to poison him with a nerve agent.

Navalny said at the time that he was poisoned in Siberia in August 2020. The Kremlin denied trying to kill him and said there was no evidence he was poisoned with a nerve agent.

In an interview in Moscow in 2011, Navalny was asked by Reuters if he was afraid of challenging Putin's system.

"That's the difference between me and you: you are afraid and I am not afraid," he said. "I realize there is danger, but why should I be afraid?"

Rishi Sunak has suffered a double-blow after losing two by-elections to Labour

LONDON: UK Prime Minister Rishi Sunak has suffered a double-blow after losing two by-elections to Labour Party, overturning significant majorities in both, the media reported.

Both Kingswood and Wellingborough turned from blue to red, meaning this government has seen the most by-election losses of any Conservative administration since the Second World War, Sky News reported.

The losses do not bode well as Downing Street continues its preparation for the general election due this year.

The results also provide some relief for Keir Starmer after a challenging week for the Labour leader, having scaled back his party's green investment plan and been embroiled in an anti-semitism crisis.

Labour's wins in Kingswood and Wellingborough mean the Conservatives have now lost 10 by-elections in the course of this Parliament — two more than the eight defeats suffered by the 1992-97 Conservative administration led by John Major, The Guardian reported.

It means the Conservative government has lost more by-elections than any previous government since the 1966-70 Labour administration of Harold Wilson, which endured 15 losses, The Guardian reported.

The size of the majority Labour overturned at Wellingborough — 18, 540 — is the third biggest Tory majority the party has overturned at a by-election since the war, behind those in Mid Bedfordshire in October 2023 (24, 664) and Selby & Ainsty in July 2023 (20, 137).

Indian Army fires upon Pakistani UAVs in Poonch region

FW DESK

Indian Army troops engaged Pakistani quadcopters by opening fire in the Balnoimendhar and Gulpur sectors in Poonch district.

The flying objects, suspected to be surveillance drones from Pakistan, briefly entered Indian territory but retreated upon facing gunfire. Following the encounter, a search operation was initiated in both sectors to ensure no weapons or narcotics were dropped by the quadcopters.

According to officials, the troops observed two quadcopters entering the Mendhar area around 6.30 am, prompting the Indian forces to open fire. Similarly, in the Gulpur sector, a couple of quadcopters were spotted around the same time, and firing by Indian troops compelled them to return.

This incident follows a similar event on February 12 when Army troops fired on an enemy drone detected in the Mendhar sector.

The use of drones by Pakistan to drop narcotics and weapons in Jammu and Kashmir has raised concerns, leading the local authorities, including the Jammu and Kashmir Police, to announce a cash reward of Rs three lakh for information on drones flown from across the border with the intent of smuggling illicit items.

Indian Govt Launches Digital Payment Connectivity with Mauritius & Sri Lanka

NEW DELHI: Prime Minister Narendra Modi, along with his counterparts from Mauritius, Pravin Kumar Jugnauth, and President of Sri Lanka, Ranil Wickremesinghe, participated in the virtual launch of RuPay cards and Unified Payment Interface (UPI) connectivity between India and the respective countries on Monday.

In his remarks, Modi expressed hope that the new fintech services would benefit the two nations and emphasised the role of UPI in uniting partners with India.

"Today marks a special day for the three friendly countries of the Indian Ocean Region as we connect our historic ties with modern digital technology," stated the Prime Minister.

He highlighted the revolutionary change brought about by digital public infrastructure in India and reiterated the country's focus on its neighbourhood-first policy.

With this connectivity, Indian travellers to Mauritius can now pay merchants using UPI, while Mauritian travellers can do the same in India using the Instant Payment System (IPS) app of Mauritius.

Additionally, the adoption of RuPay technology through the MauCAS card scheme enables banks in Mauritius to issue RuPay cards domestically, usable at ATMs and PoS terminals both locally and in India.

Mauritius thus becomes the first country outside Asia to issue cards using RuPay technology. Indian RuPay cards will also be accepted at ATMs and PoS terminals in Mauritius.

The digital payments connectivity with Sri Lanka enables Indian travellers to make QR code-based payments at merchant locations in Sri Lanka using their UPI apps.

These projects, developed and executed by NPCI International Payments Limited (NIPL), along with partner banks and non-banks from Mauritius and Sri Lanka, received guidance and support from the Reserve Bank of India (RBI).

Operational through select banks, non-banks, and third-party application providers in India, Mauritius, and Sri Lanka, these facilities will be scaled up in the future, according to a statement issued by the RBI.

Attack on Indian students: US says 'working very hard' to address the issue

WASHINGTON: Asserting that there is no excuse for violence based on race or gender, the White House has said that the US is working very hard to thwart and disrupt attacks on Indians as well as Indian-origin students.

A series of attacks beginning this year has put the focus back on the security and safety of the Indian students across the country which has witnessed more than four deaths from the community.

"There's no excuse for violence, certainly based on race or gender or religion or any other factor. That's just unacceptable here in the United States," John Kirby, Coordinator for Strategic Communications at the National Security Council in the White House, said on Thursday.

Allaying the fears of parents in India as well as in the US, Kirby said President Joe Biden and his administration are working "very hard" to address the situation.

"The President and this administration have been working very, very hard to make sure we're doing everything we can to work with state and local authorities to try to thwart and disrupt those kinds of attacks and make it clear to anybody who might consider them that they'll be held properly accountable," Kirby said in response to a question.

Five Indian students have died in quick succession in the US since the start of this year, including Shreyas Reddy Benigeri in Cincinnati and Purdue University's Neel Acharya in Indiana.

External Affairs Minister S. Jaishankar said that the welfare of Indian students abroad is one of the foremost priorities of the government.

Indian students constitute more than 25 per cent of the over one million foreign students studying in the US, according to a November 2023 Open Doors report.

The number of Indians who travelled to the US for higher education increased by 35 per cent and resulted in an all-time high of 2, 68, 923 students in the academic year 2022-23, the report said.

Last year, the US consular team in India issued over 140, 000 student visas — more than in any other country in the world, setting a record for the third year in a row.

India Rejects Data Exclusivity Demand in FTA Talks to Support Generic Drugs Industry

NEW DELHI: India has firmly rejected the demand for 'data exclusivity' provision in the Free Trade Agreement (FTA) negotiations, affirming its commitment to supporting the interests of its generic drugs industry.

Commerce Secretary Sunil Barthwal emphasised this stance, stating that India stands with its generic industry and will not compromise its interests in any FTA agreements, reported businessline.

The European Free Trade Association (EFTA) bloc, which includes Iceland, Liechtenstein, Norway, and Switzerland, had pushed for the inclusion of data exclusivity in the proposed FTA with India.

However, India dismissed this demand, signalling its dedication to protecting the flourishing generic drug industry.

This decision brings relief to the Indian generic industry, especially amidst ongoing negotiations with the UK and the EU, where demands for concessions beyond the Trade Related Intellectual Property Rights (TRIPS) agreement have been made. Despite pressure to extend commitments, India remains steadfast in its support for generic drugs.

Notably, data exclusivity is not mandated under the TRIPS Agreement, and Indian laws do not provide for it.

for a specific drug, hinders generic competitors from seeking regulatory approval based on the originator's data.

India's rejection of this provision underscores its commitment to preventing monopolies on original drugs, which would adversely impact generic drug manufacturers.

Notably, data exclusivity is not mandated under the TRIPS Agreement, and Indian laws do not provide for it.

Two Indian-origin men indicted for committing visa fraud in US

NEW YORK: Two Indian-origin men have been indicted by a federal grand jury in Boston for allegedly staging armed robberies to commit visa fraud in the US state of Massachusetts.

Rambhai Patel, 36, and Balwinder Singh, 39, from New York staged armed robberies so that "victims" could apply for immigration benefits in exchange for thousands of dollars. The two were indicted last week on one count each of conspiracy to commit visa fraud, according to the US Attorney's Office for the District of Massachusetts.

Patel was arrested in Seattle on December 13, 2023, and following an initial appearance in the Western District of Washington, he was ordered detained pending trial.

Singh was also arrested on the same day in Queens and had his initial appearance in the Eastern District of New York.

According to the charging documents, beginning March 2023, Patel and his co-conspirators, including at times Singh, set up and carried out staged armed robberies.

These were carried out at eight convenience/liquor stores and fast food restaurants across the US, including at least four in Massachusetts.

It is alleged that the purpose of the staged robberies was to allow the clerks present to claim that they were victims of a violent crime on an application for U non-immigration status (U Visa).

A U Visa is available to victims of certain crimes who have suffered mental or physical abuse and who have been helpful to law enforcement in the investigation or prosecution of criminal activity.

In the course of the alleged staged robberies, the "robber" would threaten store clerks and/or owners with an apparent firearm before taking cash from the register and fleeing, while the interaction was captured on store surveillance video.

The clerks and/or owners would then wait five or more minutes until the "robber" had escaped before calling the police to report the "crime".

The "victims" are alleged to have paid Patel to participate in the scheme. In turn, Patel allegedly paid the store owners for the use of their stores for the staged robbery.

One purported victim allegedly paid $20, 000 to participate as a victim in one of the staged armed robberies. It is alleged that at least two purported victim co-conspirators submitted U Visa applications based on being victims of the staged armed robberies.

The charge of conspiracy to commit visa fraud provides for a sentence of up to five years in prison, three years of supervised release, and a fine of $250, 000.

minutes until the "robber" had escaped before calling the police to report the "crime".
